

ENHANCING LIVES THROUGH DESIGN

Italian Cabinetry and Chef's Appliances Come Together in a New York Luxury Kitchen Remodel

For his kitchen remodel, an enthusiast home cook wanted a design that would stand as a testament to his refined taste; a space to express both his passion for cooking and his love of art; a place that would truly belong to him, in every curated detail.

MandiCasa New York designer, Maria Filimonova and the showroom team joined forces with interior designer, Lisa Pirro to bring this vision to life.

Wanting a surprise, the client only selected vendors and finishes, then gave the design team total creative freedom. He packed up in January 2024 and left the project in their hands, fully trusting them to deliver the kitchen of his dreams.

ITALIAN DARK OAK CABINETS FOR A BOLD AESTHETIC

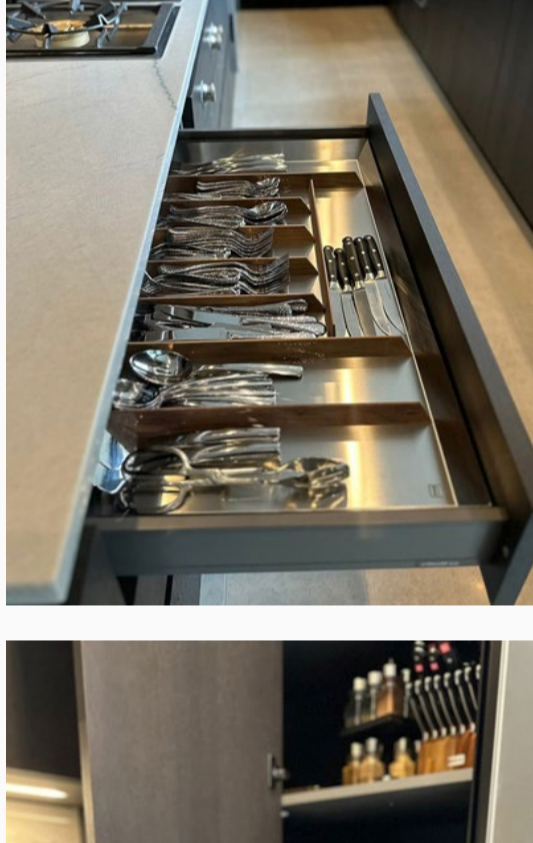

To bring the client's personality into the new kitchen, the team envisioned a bold contemporary space that would nonetheless feel cozy and inviting. At the heart of this aesthetic direction is MandiCasa's Yota cabinetry in Rovere Station. With a minimalist handleless design, these Italian charcoal-stained dark oak cabinets gave the room a strong character.

A "MAN'S KITCHEN" DESIGNED FOR PERFORMANCE

Supporting the client's desire to have the best cooking tools available, the kitchen integrates a lineup of 12 Gaggenau appliances in stainless steel, along with two Galley workstation for the sink and bar areas. Joining kitchen and dining area are tall cabinets in metal framed glass which provide a sophisticated display for the client's crystals and stemware collection.

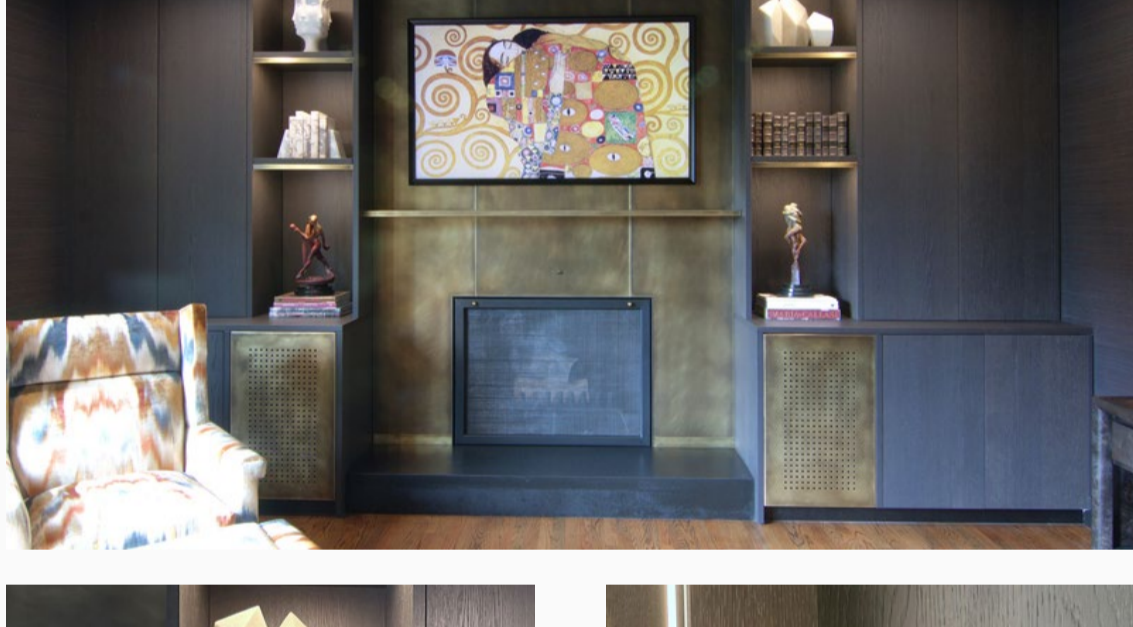

BRINGING ART INTO THE KITCHEN SPACE

Included in the remodel was the fireplace lounge area, which sits opposite the kitchen.

To achieve a cohesive space and create an area to showcase some of the client's collection pieces, the team framed the fireplace with the same Yota Rovere Station dark oak cabinets, along with bronze paneling to match the finish of the kitchen island's hood.

The addition of open-shelf niches created the ideal spot for the client's newly acquired Richard MacDonald sculptures. Lighting skillfully blended into the wood and metalwork turn the spotlight on these beautiful pieces.
